The audit trail at this stage should make the deployed system state reconstructible, so that reviewers can determine what was live, under what constraints, and under whose authority.